

Hi, over 30 markets this weekend!

the Vintage Market Guide

Hi there,

June has barely begun and the calendar is already overflowing...

This weekend more than thirty markets await across the country, from the lakeside squares of Geneva, Zug and Zürich to the old-town courtyards of Graubünden. It could be the fullest thrifting weekend of the year – so there is no excuse to stay home!

A few markets are especially worth the detour. In Ilanz, the Klosterflohmarkt carries a special meaning this year: the convent is preparing to move in a few years, and the sisters have begun sorting through their belongings, keeping what matters and passing the rest on.

In Zug, the flea market comes to the old town just twice a year. The stalls spill across the Gerbiplatz and down the narrow lanes, past the old burgher houses with Lake Zug right alongside. One of the loveliest settings for a Saturday of browsing.

And on Sunday, the Brocante de Carouge brings antiques and brocante to Geneva's Italianate old town.

Good reasons to travel a little further than usual!

And if the weather does not cooperate, you can still stay dry: the flea market at Markthalle Basel (Saturday night and Sunday), the Grosse Halle in Bern, the covered Rüti Flohmi in Pratteln and the Vinylbörse in Wald ZH are all under a roof.

TVMG - Market Diaries

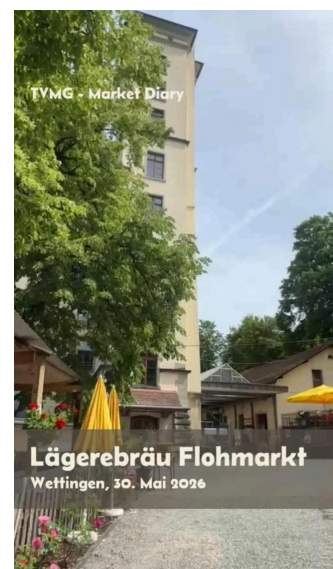

Flohmarkt Strandgut at Neubad Lucerne: an early Sunday in a genuinely special place, the former Biregg indoor pool from 1969, now a cultural house. You pass through the changing rooms and the showers and suddenly find yourself in the tiled swimming basin, the whole pool filled with stalls. Not an anonymous market but one with real character: mostly private sellers, plenty of second-hand fashion, cool music and a bar at the pool's edge ...

The LägereBräu flea market in Wettingen: summer heat, a beer garden in the shade of the old spinning mill and a small, lovely flea market right beside the monastery. This is where LägereBräu brews its beer, once a few friends' hobby, now a brewery with its own garden. A handful of stalls, some good finds and a cold beer in the garden ...

And one more quick look behind the scenes. Last week we asked for your help naming the virtual TVMG scout we are building on WhatsApp, the one that will answer all your questions about Swiss flea markets, brocantes and vintage events. The votes came in, and we have a name:

Say hello to Mira: the lookout, the watcher. The name fits the role perfectly, a friendly vintage scout who answers all your questions and tells you what is on, when and where. Thank you to everyone who took part!

We are putting the finishing touches on Mira now and will let you know the moment she is ready to chat. If there is something you would love to ask her, just hit reply to this email.

Until next week,
