

 The final stretch begins: Braderie de Carouge, Retrotechnica Thun and 30 more markets

the Vintage Market Guide

Hi there,

October is here, and for many open-air markets, the season's final stretch has begun.  Frauenfeld and Weinfelden hold their last markets of the year on Saturday, and Bürkliplatz has just four Saturdays left!

In Romandie, it's worth making the trip to Carouge on Sunday: at the Grande Braderie de Carouge, the people of Carouge clear their cellars and attics onto the Place du Marché, the Place de Sardaigne and the surrounding streets. Only locals may sell, so this is a real vide-grenier rather than a dealers' market. Children run their own toy market, the Braderie des petits, and on Saturday the shops already put their stock out on the street for the vide-boutique. And if you sew, knit or embroider, keep Saturday free for Vevey: the Brocante des Couturières under the covered Parvis de la Grenette is all about textiles and needlework, with fabrics, wool, haberdashery and sewing machines, much of it from old stock or a grandmother's cupboards.

If you collect, head to Thun this weekend: Retrotechnica at Thun Expo brings together retro technology on Saturday and Sunday, joined by RetroPhoto, RetroVinyls and the Berner Sammler-Spielzeugbörse with model railways and model cars.

In Central Switzerland, Saturday makes a nice little round trip: Ebikon, Luzern and Sarnen all hold their flea markets on the same day.

And then there's a premiere this week that we're especially excited about: thrifting in a Brocki until 11 pm, with a bar and music? From this Saturday, you can do just that in Zurich! The Züri Brocki Nights kick off at the Zürcher Brockenhaus on Neugasse, from 6 to 11 pm, with live acts, a bar and thrifting late into the evening. Until mid-December, five more Zurich Brockis will follow, each on a Saturday evening.

Right at the bottom, we're showing you something new on our website this time that we're especially excited about...

Have fun thrifting, whether in the morning on the square or in the evening at the Brocki!

TVMG - Market Diaries

Fête de la Brocante, Le Landeron: The Fête de la Brocante du Landeron isn't a market you stumble upon by chance. You make the trip on purpose, and quite a few people stay the whole weekend. As early as Friday, when the dealers set up their stalls and unpack the first pieces, the brocante begins to spread through the lanes and across the squares of the medieval little town.

Floh- und Gänggalimarkt Chur: Half of Chur, it seemed, was out and about: every first Saturday of the month, the Arcas in the middle of Chur's old town turns into a flea market, stall after stall, table after table, and in between, in true Graubünden style, skis and cross-country skis among all the knick-knacks. Not a spectacular antiques market, but a hugely lively, packed, easy-going town flea market where the atmosphere almost matters more than any single piece.

New: the market search 🔍

This week, something new arrived on our website that we're especially excited about, because it makes searching so much easier: the market search!

On the Markets page, simply type in the name of a market or a town, for example «Kanzlei» or «Wetzikon». As you type, you already see every matching town and market, each market with its next date, and one click takes you straight there.

On top of that, every town now has its own page, with a photo and all the markets that take place there. Below are the dates, and with «Next 7 days», «This weekend», «Next 30 days» or «Pick a date» you choose the time span. If nothing is on in the town itself right now, one click shows you the markets around it.
